The facilities at OUBST are available for Oxford University medical sciences academics and colleagues working on projects in China or with Chinese partners.

You may wish to consider using the offices to:
- Hold meetings in a central Beijing location
- Use desk space whilst working in Beijing
- Have a central location for your China-based research project
- Run a clinical trial
- Use the wider office facilities

Costs may be associated with some of these; contact Karen Valentine for more information.

Oxford University (Beijing) Science & Technology Co. Ltd (OUBST) was officially launched in May 2012 by the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford Professor Andrew Hamilton.

The OUBST offices currently facilitate the Acarbose Cardiovascular Evaluation (ACE) trial run by Oxford’s Diabetes Trials Unit led by Professor Rury Holman. There are currently eight local-hire staff housed in the offices working on this trial, with some additional desk space (pictured above) available for use by other Oxford staff engaged in similar projects.

THE KERRY CENTRE AND SURROUNDS

The Beijing Kerry Centre is in a twin towers complex in Beijing’s central business district. As well as extensive office space, the 31-storey octagonal-shaped buildings have a five star hotel, upmarket apartments and a shopping mall along with stunning city views. The area is one of the most important financial centres in China and is also a hub for media, information technology, consulting and service industries. The area has attracted many multinational blue chip companies and has a world-class skyline with a number of tall skyscrapers. There are also several foreign embassies in the locality. The area is also a cultural hub with many museums, concert halls and theatres nearby.

THE BOARDROOM

The stylish boardroom boasts an uninterrupted panoramic view over Beijing’s iconic CCTV tower, as well as AV equipment and seating.
